The Indigenous Studies Research Network is hosting a roundtable discussion with Professor Robert Miller from the Lewis and Clark Law School. Professor Miller will be visiting QUT during March and part of the program includes this roundtable discussion. The roundtable has been scheduled from 12:30pm – 2:00pm on Wednesday 3rd March at the ISRN Offices in B Block, Room 309, Kelvin Grove Campus, lunch will be provided.

More details on Professor Miller can be viewed at http://lawlib.lclark.edu/blog/native_america/ or view copies of his published research papers on the following SSRN author page: http://ssrn.com/author=354803

The ISRN hopes you are able to join us in this engaging round table conversation, a copy of Professor Robert J. Miller’s bio appears below.

Robert J. Miller graduated from Lewis & Clark Law School in 1991 and then clerked for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. He has taught and practiced American Indian law since 1993 and is the Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals for the Grand Ronde Tribe. Professor Miller has written numerous articles, books, editorials, and book chapters on Indian law issues and has spoken at federal, state, and private conferences in more than thirty-one states and in England, Canada, and Australia. Professor Miller’s first book “Native America, Discovered and Conquered: Thomas Jefferson, Lewis & Clark, and Manifest Destiny” was published in 2006. He is currently writing a book on American Indian economic development and has completed another book with Indigenous scholars from Australia, New Zealand, and Canada. He is a citizen of the Eastern Shawnee Tribe of Oklahoma.
